M60A3 Tank at West Orange

From Spring through early Summer 2025, the M60A3 MBT on the front lawn of the West Orange Armory got a face lift. Thanks to Eagle Scout Chris Ferrell, he was authorized to complete the face lift as his Eagle Scout Project.

(above) this is the before look of the M60A3, it has the cold war camouflage paint scheme and no bumper numbers.

Chris and his fellow Scouts work many hours prepping the tanks, priming the rust spots, removing the worn-out mantel cover from the front and sealing the periscope ports against the weather.

The result was Chris, and company finished the project leaving the 60 with a fresh coat of OD Green and placed a landscape wall around the existing Armory sign board. Thanks to Chris the Armory presents a better appearance to the general public.

The Story Behind the Numbering and Naming the Armory M60A3 Tank Display

The M60A3 Tank displayed on the West Orange Armory front lawn was cleaned and repainted during 2025 as part of an Eagle Scout Project. The Scout also landscaped, installed landscape blocks and solar lights around the area of the 102d Cavalry front lawn sign.

During the July 2025 Regimental Heritage Initiative workday, the Committee painted the bumper markings and the National Stars on the Tank.

Unit bumper markings 50 2-102: This tank was assigned to the 50 Armored Division, 2d Bn 102d Armor during the late 1980s and early 1990s. When the M60A3 was replaced by the M-1 Tank.

B: Company B- 2-102 Armor was the Unit assigned to The West Orange Armory after the downsizing of the old 2d Tank Battalion during the 1990s.

34: During 1978 a new 1LT Kieslor was assigned to the third platoon. At that time, the MTOE only authorized four tanks in the third platoon, not the usual five tanks per platoon.

The Name “Bad Betty”: In keeping with the Army tradition, tanks were named with the first letter of the Company to which it was assigned. During the 1970s the Armory staff were assigned a housekeeper, Betty Elge. Therefore, the name of the tank, to honor Betty for dedication to assist in always maintaining the Armory in pristine condition.

Liberation Celebration in France

In August Paris and the surrounding communities will celebrate the Liberation from Nazi control in August 1944. One of those communities is Corbeil, France. Today it is known as Corbeil-Essone. After the war and through the decades many of the smaller French communities reorganized in to one larger community, most likely for financial reasons. If you travel through France, through the local roadways, you will experience small townships, all with their own church and separated by only a few hundred yards. As found in the U.S., over the years small boroughs joined together to become townships.

As the 102nd CRS screened the 4th Infantry Division into Paris, Troop C, commanded by CPT Milton J. Hull from Maplewood, NJ, enter Corbeil on 25 August 1944 and immediately came under fire by well entrenched German forces. After a short period both sides experienced numerous casualties. The 32-man, 2nd Platoon suffered five KIA's and 18 WIA's within the first hour of the fight. Troop C ended up defeating the German forces by capturing 31 prisoners and killing 100 Germans. Captain William T. Haley Jr, the medical officer assigned to the 102nd CRS, gallantly rushed out during the heavy fighting and rescued several soldiers from both sides, earning him the Distinguished Service Cross and a Purple Heart for wound received during his gallant efforts. The battle lasted five-hours, CPT Hull offered to the German an opportunity to surrender, but they refused and suffered the consequence with 100 casualties. The 3rd Platoon, commanded by SSG William J. Glynn, from Woodridge, NJ move into position to quickly cut off any retreat for the Germans.
